Connie Mack's Latest Catch is
Six Feet, Two Inches and Swift

How "One Round" Hogan Gained His Soubriquet After Being Refused a Try-out in San Francisco.

CONNIE MACK'S latest catch is a youngster by the name of "Pitcher" Salmon, who has played a lot of prep school ball and who struck Connie's fancy while in Princeton last season. Mack's latest acquisition stands six feet two inches and has a long reach, which Connie is expecting to work up into a real terror twirler. It must have been "dough" ball by which Connie hooked the Salmon.

Approach of One Round Hogan's victory over Battling Nelson is the story of how he earned his soubriquet. When Hogan, who is known among his friends as "Steve," took it into his head to become a boxer, he applied to the manager of a boxing club in Frisco, that he be put on in a four round bout with some other ambitious youngster. Instead of taking the chance and putting Hogan into the ring, the promoter first tried him out, and decided that he would not do. Hogan, disgruntled, went to Salt Lake City. They took the chance there and put him on. Hogan knocked out the first 15 men he fought, and not one of the boys went over one round. Since then the title "One Round" Hogan has stuck to him. When Hogan returned to Frisco his doings in Salt Lake had preceded him and he had no further difficulty in getting on.

The students of Yale, Harvard and Princeton favor graduate coaching in preference to professional. This was brought out in recent questions submitted to the undergrads of the three universities, asking opinions about coaching and which was the chief college sport. All three universities showed a majority favoring graduate coaching, and about three-quarters of the students in each case voted for it. Football was voted the preeminent college sport by all three universities. At Yale and Harvard, rowing was voted second place. At Princeton every vote cast but one was for football, and that vote was for baseball.

John Ward, the old New York shortstop and the new manager of the Boston Nationals, is growing into the organization of his club. Ward is going to build up a team of young players. He says it is no use in trying to buy star players from the other clubs, because no club can afford to dispose of a star player. Ward believes that Boston must build up a team of youngsters, and says that he has a good foundation to work on and that some of the first division teams will be surprised when it comes to the showoff next year. The playing dates begin on April 1, and Ward is going to give his men only a short southern training, about three weeks at the highest.

The National Baseball commission has finally restored Jake Stahl to good standing. Stahl was placed on the ineligible list for failure to report to the Boston team last year. As he did not indicate in any outlay baseball during the period of his absence from the Boston team last year. As he did not indicate in any outlay baseball during the period of his absence from the Boston team last year.

The Boston Red Sox have been given the honor of playing the White Sox on "flag raising day" at Comiskey park. On that day the flag which the south-siders grabbed from the Cubs in the Chicago city series will be unfurled to the breeze in Comiskey's ball yard. A celebration fitting the occasion is being planned. The Red Sox were chosen on account of the friendliness of the officials of the two teams. Jimmy McEwen, Bob McRoy and Jake Stahl are close personal friends of president Comiskey and manager Callahan.
